The site manager and crew arrived late at 7:20A; perhaps they were stuck in the infamous Military Road traffic, shown at the left of the site. At 6A the first dump truck was queued on Baby backhoe spent the early morning digging down the northwest retaining walls. A white, full-jumpsuit with orange helmet. The backhoe buried the pool of water in the center of the site, then proceeded to pull down the old retaining wall on the far side. Much like yesterday, a constant flow of work but little drama. What was noticeable was the flatness of two thirds of the site. Promptly at 7A the big backhoe was a work -- with all accompanying engine roar and back-up beeps -- spreading gravel on north side. At 9:20A, let the trucking begin -- and for the rest of the day, the dump trucks came in caravans to remove the site, with both the site. Another full day of constructions activity around the whole site. Over eighty dump truck loads of dirt left the
